Ramblings In Japan

by T. Geo. Wood.

As the visit to this puzzling country draws to its conclusion, my thoughts turn to the countryside.

Last Saturday the Latter-Day Saint people in this Tokyo area celebrated the 24th of July, Pioneer Day, by a community picnic at Camp Tachinobe a part of the enormous installation of Camp Zama - which is headquarters for 8th U. S. Army - Central Command in Japan.

The road to Tachinobe lies westward from the port city of Yokohama. After leaving the city streets and shops, a beautiful rural area is traversed, gradually rising to the foothills and distant mountain slopes of the Fuji range of mountains.

There was little waste land. As is usual in Japan, every foot of available soil seemed cultivated. The crops are most impressive. To a Japanese farmer, every crop that is a climber has been provided with a frame on which to climb. So all the little farms seem filled with bamboo fences, tied with straw ropes, on which cucumbers, melons, beans, red and white flowered tomatoes, seven and eight inches long climb.

In the flat rice paddies, part of each farm, men and women work in the muddy soil, cultivating and weeding all by hand.

Each little rice patch is bordered by sidewalks, built of hammered mud to hold the water - and flattened on top for a walkway. Rice now is full green and two feet high. In fact, the first rice is being harvested in the south. Rice is the staple crop of all the island country. Production is around 70 million kokei or roughly bushels, with wheat and barley together, only about 20 million kokei, but Japan is now importing large quantities of wheat from Canada and U.S.

Many acres are devoted to root crops. Sweet potatoes are grown more than white potatoes, in the proportion of 3 to 1. The people prefer rice to wheat and sweet potatoes, or taro over white potatoes.

The special food crops, however, make each farm of particular interest. To look at them, you would guess that more onions than potatoes are grown. Have never seen a farm without onions growing. Of course you meet them again in all Japanese cooking from sukiyaki to tempura - along with giant radish daikon.

Then egg plants are very prominent. Now the markets are flooded with small ones, about like a pear, just as colorful and purple as their big brothers.

Tomatoes, sword carrots, great cabbages are available at all the markets with peas and beans in variety and profusion.

There is a strong feeling and warning that foreign personnel should not freely use Japanese vegetables and fruits. They are all grown and fertilized by the use of human manures and therefore are potential disease carriers.

However, proper precautions of peeling, washing and cooking make the use of indigenous foods reasonably safe.

So we come to the fruits. We started on strawberries in March, winter peas in April, then loquats, then early peaches, with currants, now melons, and grapes are in the markets.

Melons come in many varieties. They grow a cantaloupe melon very expensive, sold in a net, with about a six inch stalk attached. Water-melons started quite small, but very sweet, at about 200 yen. 60 cents each. Now you can buy quite large ones, say 10 lbs. for 120 yen, or 30 cents, about 3 cents per lb. Large Honeydew melons are still high in cost, but we are enjoying a new melon to us. This is a small one shaped like a large pear, with a bright yellow skin, tasting much like a honeydew melon.

To eat it, cut in half, scoop out a few small seeds. Peel your half and eat it with a little lemon juice. We testify that these Makwauri melons are delicious.

One of our surprises has been the high price of bananas. They have

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Anderson and two children, Eddie and Carolyn and Mrs. Harris of Magrath toured through Kalspell and over beautiful Logan Pass recently.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Follis and Robert, and Mr. and Bill Pierce and daughter enjoyed the airshow in Lethbridge.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. Norman Lambe and the late Mr. Norman Lambe of Claresholm, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter Elizabeth Alice to Gerald Lynn son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Finch of Raymond. The wedding will take place August 27, 1955 at 3 o'clock in the Claresholm United Church.

Norma Meldrum And Allan Pack Wed In Cardston Temple

A wedding uniting two well known families of Raymond was solemnized in the Alberta Temple last Wednesday July 27th, when Norma Jean youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Parley Meldrum and Allan Mirza, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Mirza P. Pack were united in marriage by President Willard L. Smith.

Immediately following the ceremony the parents of the groom entertained at a luncheon in the 2nd Ward Hall for members of immediate families.

In the evening a reception was tendered the young couple in the Taylor Stake House, which was decorated with baskets of flowers, wedding bells and pink streamers. The brides table was decorated with sweet peas and candelabra, the wedding cake was on a small table encircled with Smilax.

The bride wore a full length gown of lace and net over taffeta with a fingertip veil held in place by a bead.

A Message to the People of the Raymond, Welling and Magrath Districts

John Wrentz of the Belsker Colony received 27 pints of blood from the lost arm in a combine accident. He Red Cross. Here he is returning 1 pint

The facilities of the Blood Transfusion Service are limited by many factors, chief of which are time, staff and money.

However the capacity of the mobile team to handle 70 to 80 donors an hr. is sufficient to supply all the blood needed for Southern Alberta Hospitals, providing their time and energy is not dissipated by holding too many clinics or moving.

It has been found necessary to hold district clinics at central places, and the Red Cross appeals to people of goodwill to attend the nearest clinic.

The Raymond / Magrath clinic held last year at Welling was the most successful ever held in these districts for 260 attended, and the Red Cross is very appreciative of the many good people from both towns who attended. 9 p. m.

Again this kind of cooperation is needed at the clinic scheduled to be held at Welling Wednesday August 10th. Each place has been asked to supply a minimum of 100 bottles of blood for this service at that Welling clinic.

Most of us in Alberta know of someone, family or friends, who have received blood from this service, and it is suggested that this would be a good time to make this gift available to someone else who may be in need. May you never need blood.

The mobile unit can only visit this district once a year, and Wednesday Aug. 10th will be your day to make your donation to this service.

Clinic will be set up in the L. D. S. Church Hall from 2 to 3 p. m. and 6 to 9 p. m.

We Hail Thee', after which John Smith gave the opening prayer and Ann Hicken gave the theme. Eugene Dahl, superintendent of the M. I. A. exceeded the program outlined. Firstly, Jenetta Howard rendered two piano solos, after which a blackout skit by John Smith and Diane Dahl was performed, and Donald Baakken played two lively tunes on his accordion. From out of the Old West came Dave Crockett's daughters, dressed like real gunslingers - Jane Hicken and Diane Dahl, with Connie Fisher at the piano, gave their hilarious version of 'Doing What Comes Naturally'. A blackout skit 'Worms in the Salad' was done by Murray Holt and his son Robert. 'My Isle of Golden Dreams' was softly sung by a double trio, including Lucille Evans, Jan Heninger, Jane Brewerton, Laura Hirsche, Betty Evans and Elizabeth Kiddle, accompanied by Dorothy Nielson at the piano. A humorous blackout skit by Dalen Pack, Lavonne Shaw and Eugene Dahl followed. RAMBLINGS IN JAPAN never been less than about 10 cents each or 35 cents per lb. We have reached the conclusion that they must be imported. Only stateside oranges are now available.

Japan grows many apples, the early varieties are here now. The amazing thing about their fruit culture, is that each fruit, from apricots, peaches, to pears and apples are wrapped while on the tree, to prevent insect or pest damage. You see these trees, all wrapped with paper, and many of them supported by wooden frames, on nearly every farm.

We were impressed with mulberry culture for the silkworms. Mulberries are grown for their leaves, which produce the silk crop of Japan. To our surprise, they are not allowed to grow into trees, but are kept clipped down, into border bushes around the small fields. In this way the leaves can be easily plucked into baskets and trays for silk worm consumption. I recall saying something about silk, but this may be news to you. There are three crops of silkworms each year. The spring crop reared as soon as mulberry leaves are available, the summer crop, which starts to eat in early August, then the fall crop, about mid September. You might think of beet web worms.

These silkworms, after hatching moult four times and then grow as big as your thumb, start spinning the cocoon 25 days from the egg. This spinning and transforming into a chrysalis takes another 8 days.

At this stage the cocoons are suffocated and dehydrated by heat, and are ready for sale by the farmer to the silk filature mills. 23 % of the cocoon is silk filament, each perfect cocoon will yield 1200 meters of silk fiber. Over 60 million Kan of cocoons are produced yearly by the Japanese farmers. From this point of course, the processing of silk becomes a great industry with large exports of raw silk and various fabrics all over the world.

One organization alone Kanebo, produces 500,000 yards of silk fabrics each month, from 13 different factories. All of it rests on the shoulders of the Japanese farming people through the medium of the silkworm caterpillar.

The Japanese people have a proverb

Nai sode wa furenu.

Literally - No sleeves, no swinging, or Of nothing, comes nothing.

I quote it to emphasize my observation, that after all the life blood of Japan, with all its Eastern civilization and Western hustle, depends for its sustenance on the patient, hardworking people of the farms, the fisheries and the forests, of the Island Empire.
